

PROF. SIR PETER CRANE, FRS

Carl W Knobloch Jr. Dean of the School of Forestry and Environmental Studies, Yale University

Prof. Peter Crane is Carl W. Knobloch Jr. Dean of the School of Forestry and Environmental Studies at Yale University. His work focuses on the diversity of plant life, its origin, current status, conservation and use. From 1999 to 2006 he was Director of The Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew, one of the largest, most prestigious and influential botanical gardens in the world. He returned to Chicago in 2006 as the John and Marion Sullivan University Professor at The University of Chicago, before being appointed at Yale in 2009.